Q32017

What year did you graduate?

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

The best thing that I took away from my time in undergrad was being able to work in the classroom from the time I was a freshman until student teaching. Too often, I see surrounding colleges that attend our school to do field experience and it's their first time in the classroom or their first time writing lesson plans. I truly appreciate the amount of experience that I received.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

I think that my phonics class was outdated. It would be nice to have some sort fo Orton Training or Wilson Training or something. I felt unprepared to teach my students how to truly read.

Q32015

What year did you graduate?

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

All of the classroom experience from the very start. Having the opportunity to see all of these different classrooms in action influenced my pedagogy whether the experience was negative or positive. As someone who values this experience, I have always welcomed preservice teachers in to my room. I have discovered that not all teacher programs have this component as its base.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

Differentiation. Rigor. It was a topic of discussion, but I was left with little usable knowledge and/or experience. Students would need authentic opportunities to learn the base of this type of knowledge.

2015

What year did you graduate?

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

I loved the interdisciplinary course required my sophomore year at Wittenberg. I felt it was really valuable due to the vast amount of curriculum we are asked to teach during a school day that is not so long. In order to fit everything in, we do have to cross curriculums...for example, our language arts program, Wit and Wisdom, has aligned the standards of many subject areas. It was really important for me to have had experience teaching this way so I can best educate my students. Another great takeaway was differentiating instruction. Differentiation is something we do for various students during various lessons throughout the day, and I felt more prepared coming into my own classroom knowing I had prior experience with differentiation. Finally, I loved the amount of collaboration we were expected to do during our field experiences. We collaborated with our teachers, fellow aspiring teachers, and professors from time to time. As a 5th year teacher being part of two different grade-levels and working on various teams throughout my building, I collaborate more than anything. I believe that one of the most important things teachers can be taught before entering the field is to be a team player and work well with others. This is something that also translates to your students.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

I wish there had more of a focus on social/emotional programs or well-being in the classroom. I truly believe it is one of the most important things we can teach, and so many students, no matter who they are or where they come from, struggle with how to manage their emotions on top of all the other things they can be dealt with at such a young age. Parents and teachers need to put much more time and energy into educating children on WHAT emotions are and HOW to best handle them rather than just assuming they already know. I think there could be a couple courses on this and how to integrate this into the classroom. This can also be connected to educators and how they best take care of themselves because it can be a big emotional burden on teachers if you do not properly take care of your emotions.

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

The best thing I learned was pedagogy and how the founders of education thought and lived. Specifically, Dr. Monke and Dr. Broidy were wonderful educators on this subject.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

I wish that I had learned more hard skills such as how to set up centers, how to schedule your day, how to grade specific assessments etc. I also wished that I had learned more about social emotional teaching and classroom management. I hope that that is a bigger part of the program now since it's a very popular topic. Also, I wish I learned more about statewide assessments. I'm a third grade teacher now and wish I learned more about the third grade reading guarantee.

Q32015

What year did you graduate?

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

One of the best things I learned was how to adjust instruction and teaching style based upon student population. A very influential class was Dr. Yontz's Urban Education class, when we visited the schools in Cleveland and looked at their stats and visited their buildings. Especially now as a Springfield City Schools Educator it was imperative that Witt students get this diverse range of experiences.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

One thing I wish I learned would be how to effectively manage the classroom. Witt did a great job teaching on instruction and curriculum, but I believe there needs to be dedicated time instructing students on how to manage a classroom, because this is half the battle, especially in urban schools.

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

Professional attire- everyone always comments that I look nice and it is because we always had to dress up during our placements.

Also, how to incorporate more than one standard/ goal within a lesson.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?

I feel that I could have had more in-depth work with using programs that schools use- ProgressBook, IEP Anywhere, google classroom.

Also more in-depth info with IEPs- we went through the steps, but writing you first IEP for a student that you've only known a short time is difficult. We talked in class and made it feel like we would always know the students we are writing IEPs for, but it's more difficult. So maybe more work writing IEPs to prepare us/ using the actual programs to practice.

What year did you graduate?

Q4

What is the best thing you learned during your time at Wittenberg in the Education Department that has impacted your professional work?

The fact that we went into schools our freshman year for practicums allowed me to feel comfortable in a new setting, which transferred into my life as a new teacher adjusting into a building where my team is made up of veteran teachers. I also would say that our lesson plans, while extensive, were helpful in considering all the components that go into a successful plan. I overplan too much, but I am often grateful that I have more to do than not enough.

Q5

In regards to your professional work, what is the one thing you wished you learned during your time in the Wittenberg Education Department?
